Rutland fire door procurement service

Sourcing fire doors for UK properties is no simple task. With a great deal of variety in building types, there's no such thing as one door fits all. Dependably achieving compliant fire doorsets requires industry knowledge and a thorough understanding of legislation. Based on our extensive expertise on fire door compliance and certification (and in response to numerous requests from the market) we're pleased to offer a consultative supply of fire doorsets.

Helping you get it right

It's our collective duty to specify the safest products that are proven to protect lives in the event of emergency. At Rutland, that's what we do every day. With the Golden Thread front of mind, we are able to offer you in-depth guidance throughout the doorset procurement process. The specialist support from Rutland ensures that you procure fire doors for your commercial properties which are certified to meet or exceed the safety thresholds set out in both UK and EU standards.

Seamless supply

With the specification of your door confirmed, we move to commissioning manufacture of the door sets with our best-suited manufacturing partner. We take into account the manufacturing expertise needed and the factory capacity required to fulfil the order within your timescales. And our experienced support team and network of specialist installers ensure that everything goes just as smoothly on site as in production.
